

Allowing passengers to use cell phones during flights would not only compromise everyone's safety onboard the aircraft but would make for some pretty annoying flights. I, for one, do not want to be subjected to some stranger's phone conversation for an hour-long flight. I enjoy the peace and quiet before I get home by reading on the plane or napping. Plus, I don't want to be distracted or not be able to hear if there is an aircraft emergency. Please continue to ban cell phone use while airborne. Thank you.
